Deck the Halls with Agriculture

Wreaths and Garland

As Christmas trees are trimmed, the trimmings aren't wasted. They are assembled into wreaths or garlands for decorating doors and mantles.

Fireplace

To ward off the cold of winter, fireplaces burn wood to keep homes warm and cozy.

Tree

Christmas trees were first harvested from the woods. Today, 98% of all Christmas trees are grown on the 15,000 Christmas tree farms in the United States.

Decorations Then and Now

Agriculture has been used to decorate our homes for the holidays since the first tree was decorated in Germany in 1605. Apples, nuts, candies, gingerbreads, paper roses, and small beeswax candles were used to decorate early trees. Many tree decorations today still come from agriculture, like candy canes and popcorn-cranberry garlands.

Stockings

As the stockings were hung by the fireplace, they were often made from wool due to its resistance to fire. Today stockings and tree skirts are still made out of wool, from sheep, or cotton, harvested from plants.

Presents

Wrapping paper, in all colors and designs, is made from trees. It makes Christmas morning surprises a joy to unwrap.
